

Code of Conduct and Business Ethics Policy

Introduction

The Code of Conduct and Business Ethics Policy (the Policy) outlines guidelines of Trojan Construction Group – Sole Proprietorship LLC (TCG) and its subsidiaries (henceforth referred to as the Group) on honest and ethical conduct.

Scope

This Policy applies to TCG, and its subsidiaries that do not have existing related policies suitable to their operations. The Policy applies to all areas of the Group's business operations, covering all directors, executives, and employees working for or on behalf of the Group. It also extends to outsourced or seconded employees working exclusively for or on behalf of the Group. The Policy also applies to its external parties working at its premises. The Group encourages these external parties to adopt similar policies in line with the Group's Supplier Code of Conduct.

Policy Statement

TCG adopts standards of honest and ethical conduct aligned with its core values. The following principles do not address every legal or ethical issue that individuals may face but are intended to provide guidance in acting ethically.

Anti-bribery and Anti-corruption

TCG prohibits bribery and corruption, including facilitation payments. Individuals must not:

1. provide and commit or permit others to provide and commit any form of valuable consideration, whether directly or indirectly, to any entity or individual with the intent of securing inappropriate commercial advantage; and
2. accept, solicit, or consent to the acceptance of any form of valuable consideration that results or may result in inappropriately influencing the individuals' responsibilities in the company.

"Bribery" means the direct or indirect offering, promising, giving, or soliciting anything of value including any financial or other advantage to improperly influence any act, inaction or decision of any person, including any government official or any director, officer, employee, agent or representative of any commercial organization, whether public or private.
